RENO, WASHOE COUNTY, NEVADA, SATURDAY, JULY 3, 1880.

NO. 81.

THE LIGHTNING FLASH.

Incidents of Death and Destruction by the Thunderbolt.

From the N. Y. Sun.

Lightning tore the scalp of John Mealey of Tionesta, Pa., completely off. He was killed.

A farmer living in Midland township, Ohio, was killed by lightning on the 10th. He leaves a large family.

Mrs. A. G. Small of Provincetown, Mass., was rendered insensible by lightning. Her residence was damaged.

In Todd county, Ky., Silas King was instantly killed and Marion Lindsay so injured that his recovery is doubtful.

A little girl's face was distinctly photographed on a window pane in Laurel, Ohio, during a recent thunder storm.

Henry Davis was killed while working in a barn near Brown township, O., on the 10th. The barn was also burned by the lightning stroke.

A farm house belonging to J. L. Fenton, situated at Harriestown, Ill., was struck by lightning and three of its inmates knocked senseless.

While unhitching their team Ashbel Wells and his son at Fairview township, Mo., were stunned by lightning and one of the horses instantly killed.

Marion Mosely of Henry county, Ga., lost his total supply of fall pork and bacon by one stroke of lightning. The hogs, ten in number, were under an oak.

Lightning struck the barn of Jacob High, near West Jefferson, Ohio, killing Henry Davis, who had taken refuge there, and burning the building and its contents.

Lightning cut queer antics at Jasper, Mich. It struck the windmill of Nathan Shumway, completely shattered the stone pump, and, following outside, killed two cattle.

Edward Sevier of Murfreesville, Illinois, was struck by lightning on Sunday afternoon at Russell's Pond, and instantly killed. His clothes were torn from his body and his shoes thrown a great distance.

A young man named Lyers of Ottaway was struck down by lightning while walking the street during a storm. He recovered, but one side of his face is badly scorched and part of his clothing burned.

As Miles B. Grippen, one of the deputy sheriffs in charge of the Billings jury, was riding to his home at Schuylerville, N. Y., his horse was killed, his wagon wrecked, and he made insensible by a stroke of lightning.

The Great Desideratum found at last. Castor oil made pleasant. Parry's palatable CASTOR OIL is equal in medicinal activity to the ordinary unprepared Castor Oil, but has a pleasant in place of a nauseous taste. It is easily taken and retained by the stomach, even of delicate persons. Children take it readily and make no fuss about it. Osburn & Shoemaker, Agents for Washoe County. apr17

FOR PRESIDENT,

 OF OHIO;
 FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

 OF NEW YORK.

BANKING MADE EASY.
 A Bill to be introduced in the Next Legislature—Special Legislation For Savings Banks—Some Peculiar and Interesting Features.

An anonymous contributor sends in the following copy of a bill which is to be submitted to the Nevada Legislature at its next session.

An act entitled an act to authorize the incorporation of Savings Banks for the safe and final investment of the earnings of the frugal poor and the accumulations of the unsuspecting rich; in which

We, the representatives of the sovereign people, in the honorable the Third House assembled, enact as follows:

That, after taking into consideration the incapacity of the average citizen to judiciously invest or securely save his earnings and accumulations, in such a manner as to make it most conducive to the development of the country, by placing it beyond the reach of tolling agriculturists, the struggling mechanic, and legitimate dealer, and holding it available only to glorious Rings and commendable monopolies, that it may be employed to rob the masses and enrich the few;

Be it enacted, that any body of men possessing unquestionable capacity for investigating, using, or squandering unlimited sums of money (if they can write their name or make their mark, business experience or mental capacity not essential,) may form themselves into Savings Bank Associations, under the following restrictions:

First. In order to inspire public confidence, each and every Savings Bank shall possess a nominal capital of at least one hundred thousand dollars, and shall advertise the same conspicuously.

Second. That such capital shall consist of promissory notes of gentlemen, (1) to be known as stockholders.

Third. That the rights of such stockholders may be equal in the funds of the depositor, all notes constituting the capital stock must be for equal amounts—payable never—and only assessable for such sums as may from time to time be necessary to pay the salaries of President, Cashier, and Clerk, and to maintain the indispensable seductive grandeur of their offices.

Fourth. It is enacted, and be it hereby particularly understood, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to make the notes of stockholders constituting the nominal capital stock of Savings Banks assessable, even for the sacred purpose of paying the salary of President or Cashier, whilst the deposits of the unsuspecting public are sufficient for that purpose.

Fifth. Considering the interminable character of promissory notes constituting the capital stock of such institutions, together with the fact that such capital stock and all the affairs of such corporations shall be forever exempt from the investigation of any officer under authority of the Honorable the Third House, or any commissioner or examiner authorized by either of the inferior branches of the Legislature, it is hereby decreed that all notes constituting the capital stock of Savings Banks shall be written on parchment, buckskin, or, if possible, on some material indestructible by any cause or element known in time or eternity.

Sixth. That the stockholders shall annually, from their number, elect a Board of Directors—each exercising great care that no stockholder favoring a public exhibition of the affairs and standing of such corporation shall be elected as a Director.

Seventh. That the Board of Directors shall annually, from their number, elect a President, Vice President, Cashier and Finance Committee, who shall be pledged against all legislation making reports, examinations, or any public statement of the condition of such corporation necessary.

Eighth. The salary of the President and Cashier shall be regulated according to the deposits and gullibility of the communities in which such institutions may be situated. The remuneration of the Board of Directors shall exist in their right to use all the deposits in their respective banks, excepting such amounts as may be requisite to pay salaries, to keep up appearances, to lobby against legislation intended to make public statements necessary, and to prevent outside stockholders from "sneaking."

Ninth. The duties of the "Finance Committee" shall be to aid the Cashier in imparting to the institution a business-like appearance, to carefully guard its affairs and standing from the investigation of the depositors, and to use all diligence in obstructing legislation tending to guard and protect depositors and the public from such disastrous panics as the sudden collapse of pretentious institutions is calculated to inflict.

A Monster Eel.

A monster Conger eel died recently in the Southport aquarium (England) full of ova which it was unable to part with. It measured six feet five inches in length, two feet six inches in girth, and weighed ninety pounds. It was about six years old—they usually attain their full size in seven years. They are irregular in their spawning seasons, and it is not known whether they spawn more than once in a state of nature.

Owen Buck of Oceanica, Md., had a vicious, kicking horse, which he was anxious to sell. While trying to make a bargain with a probable purchaser, he remarked: "That horse is so gentle that my little girl could go up behind him and twist his tail, and he wouldn't raise a hoof." The girl overheard this lie, took it for the truth, tried the experiment on being left alone with the horse, and was killed by the kick.

W. Goeggel's customers admit that he does none but good work. His stock of watches and jewelry is the finest and best in town. Store on Virginia street, sign of the big staircase.

Sheriff's Sale.

IN THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT Court of Nevada, in and for Washoe County.

The Truckee Lumber Company vs. R. F. Hoy.

Under and by virtue of an execution issued in the above titled cause and court, duly tested on the 1st day of July, A. D. 1880, and to me directed and delivered on a judgment recovered in said court by plaintiff and against defendant for the sum of $110.34 and $253.37 costs, besides interest at the rate of 14 per cent per month on $110.34 from date till paid, I have on this 30 day of July levied upon all the stock of lumber, shingles, doors, sashes, windows, shingles, posts and moulding which are now lying on the grounds formerly known as Hoy's lumber yard, and also the office and lumber sheds of said Hoy, also one Hal's fireproof safe, all of which will more fully appear on the inventory attached to the return on a writ of attachment issued in the above cause, and now on file in the office of the County Clerk of Washoe County, and I hereby give public notice that on Thursday, the 8th day of July, 1880 between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 5 o'clock P. M. to wit: at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, at the aforesaid lumber yard of R. F. Hoy, I will sell at public auction to the highest and best bidder for cash in hand all the above mentioned property or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy this writ above mentioned, and also an execution issued out of the above named court and to me directed and delivered on a judgment in favor of the Verdi Planing Mill Co. and against this defendant for the sum of $1448.94 and costs of suit, amounting to $90.55, and the costs and expenses of this writ.

The dry goods house of A. Strassburger & Co. closes for good this evening. The stock has all been sold in job lots to dealers. A. Strassburger returns to San Francisco next Tuesday. His brother will remain in Reno some days longer.

Dead Drunk Upon the Track.
An old man started for his cabin at a late hour last night. He was full of vegetable spirits, and walked on the railroad track in order to make a straight course. When he arrived opposite the residence of J. B. Williams he lay down for a nap. Shortly after that, No. 1 came in, and the engineer told watchman Ross that there was either "a drunk" or a dead man on the track. Ross went up to the place and found the man lying full length on a rail of the main track with his head between the rails. The noise made by No. 1 had probably caused him to awaken and roll over. A few minutes after No. 1 left the station No. 5 came in. It was not gone to the rescue, the old man would probably have been a subject for the Coroner this morning.

A Peculiar Virgin.

The Nevada Transcript, in reference to the troubles of census-takers, has the following: "The other day Mr. Rogers came across a woman in Grass Valley township, who stated that she was not married, but that she had a daughter grown up and nursing several children. The enumerator supposed that the woman had made a mistake, and asked when her husband died. The woman answered 'There you are again; I ain't married; ain't got no husband; never had one and never want one. Can't women have children without having husbands, I want to know?' The census taker left fully convinced that the woman was honest in some things, if not in others."

MASS MEETING.

THE REPUBLICAN RALLY IN THE THEATRE LAST EVENING.

An Eloquent and Able Speech From Governor Woods.

The theatre was well-filled last evening in response to the call for a Republican mass meeting. Many ladies were in the gallery and some were on the lower floor. About 8:30 the meeting was called to order and Judge Marshall elected Chairman. He made a brief speech, in which he declared that Hancock would carry all the Southern states; that his nomination was a mere pretext on the part of the Democrats; that the issue before the country was one of principle and not a choice of men; that the Republican party must succeed or cease to exist. He regretted that the ladies could not vote. If they were admitted to the suffrage, the triumph of the Republican party would be assured. The Chairman then introduced Gov. Woods to the audience in the most complimentary terms, referring to him as one of the ablest and most eloquent orators in the United States.

SPEECH OF GOV. WOODS.

Gov. Woods spoke for an hour and forty minutes. His eloquence riveted the attention of the audience, and they listened with unflinching attention from first to last. Nothing short of a verbatim report, filling a whole page of the GAZETTE, would do justice to his masterly address. The following is a mere outline of his argument and line of thought. He began by sketching the origin and purpose of government, whose object is the protection of life, liberty and property. In enforcing these objects differences of opinion necessarily arose, and in these differences was the origin of political parties. Parties must exist under a Republican form of government. The Republic of the United States is the only Republic that has ignored all the futile efforts of the past, the only real Republic that has ever existed. A Republic is easy to organize but difficult to perpetuate. In the United States there had grown up

TWO GREAT POLITICAL PARTIES.

One class entertained the idea that the Union was simply a confederation of sovereign states, the other that it was a nation. There had been a constant struggle between these conflicting ideas ever since. But there is always a tendency towards the adoption of moderate measures, produced by the contest of opposing parties. Right and justice must finally triumph. The speaker contended that the tendency in all countries to-day is towards unity and consolidation. He sketched the growth of the German empire in illustration of this idea, and declared his conviction that a small country can not have broad and liberal ideas. He traced the origin and growth of the national feeling in the United States. He believed that a nation must start with right ideas and maintain them if its existence is to be permanent.

THE TARIFF QUESTION

was long a bone of contention between the Democrat and Whig parties. One believed in no tariff, the other in a high tariff. At last the country settled down to the idea that a tariff should be for revenue only. The two parties philosophically passed out of existence when the tariff question had been settled. The next great issue was the slavery question. The speaker here digressed to bitterly denounce the slanderous and vituperative attacks that are made upon the reputation of public men. He made a strong appeal for decency, fairness and courtesy in the discussion of political questions, both in the newspapers and from the rostrum. The air was at times so full of slanders and calumnies that it seemed as if hell had been gathered by the corners and emptied out upon the land. The speaker passed on to refer to

THE CHARACTER OF GEN. GARFIELD.

He said: "I have long been personally acquainted with General Garfield. I know him intimately; as intimately as one man in this audience knows another. I know him thoroughly, and I say he is one of the best men in the nation, independently of politics. The man who says that Garfield is corrupt is a liar." The speaker pronounced Hancock "a pure man; as good a man as Garfield." But while Hancock had never held a civil office, and had been a soldier from the age of sixteen, Garfield is a statesman with many years training in political life. The speaker believed that the needs of the country now more than ever demanded that a statesman should fill the Presidential chair. He then reviewed the Calhoun that was first promulgated in 1832, came to the surface again in 1850, was fought for and against in the years between '60 and '65, and that, though the war seemed to have buried it forever, an issue now in 1880. For six years that doctrine had been again contending for the mastery. It must finally be vanquished, for civilization never goes backward. The great dividing question between the Democrats and Republicans to-day is this of state rights. A man must be on one side or the other. "I am a partisan," said the orator. "I believe in positive men and women. Give me a man stalwart in thought, but let his utterances be decent." He denounced the talk of centralization, declaring that not a dozen men in the land believed in Imperialism. He went over the main arguments in opposition to the doctrine of state rights. He explained the Republican idea of a national government, as opposed to the sovereignty of the states. "If," he said, "the states are sovereign, then there are thirty-nine sovereigns." The Constitution declares that Congress is the supreme power of the land. Congress does not represent the states but the people of the nation. The speaker pointed out that this principle of nationality was recognized in the mode of electing the President. If the states were sovereign then twenty of the thirty-nine states, being a majority, should carry the election. But under the constitutional provisions for an electoral college the election is controlled mainly by population.

THE SUFFRAGE, GUIDED BY INTELLIGENCE.

the speaker declared to be the bright, polar star to guide this Republic hereafter. The public school system of the country was warmly eulogized. There must be, however, not only intelligence, but perfect freedom of voting. The man who would deprive another of the franchise, because that other's views were different from his own, is a coward and a scoundrel. The Republican party demands an absolutely free ballot. A victory won at the expense of wrong-doing is a misfortune for any party. The intimidation of Republican voters in the South was bitterly denounced. Bulldozing, white leagues and the Ku Klux account for the 138 votes of the Solid South. South Carolina, Mississippi, West Virginia and Florida would be Republican states, but for the terrorism practised within their borders.

THE PROTECTION OF VOTERS

at the ballot box by the National Government is one of the ideas of the Republican party. They believe in the right of Government to send its Marshalls to preserve peace at the polls. The Democrats oppose the placing of Marshalls at the polls and say it tends to "centralization." They want members of Congress elected independently of the laws of the United States. The fight between the two parties over this issue has been going on for the last three years. The speaker contended that the Constitution giving Congress the right to make election laws, also conferred the power to have these laws enforced. The fact that a recent Republican ratification meeting at Montgomery, Alabama, had been broken up by a shower of rotten eggs was referred to by the speaker as an evidence of the state of things in the South. The subject of

was next taken up by the Governor. He said that the Democrats try to make out that the Republican party is not opposed to it. The fact is that it is not a political question. In California, out of all parties, only about 200 men voted for Chinese immigration. The speaker showed the hollowness of the anti-Chinese plank in the Democratic platform. The section declaring against Chinese immigration reads "except for purposes of education, travel and commerce." The legal definition of 'commerce' is given in the decision of Chief Justice Marshall, pronounced in the case of Gibbons vs. Ogden, 9th of Wheaton, p. 1, U. S. Reports. Commerce is there defined to mean "the right to carry passengers as much as the right to carry merchandise." The Constitution says that Congress alone shall have the right to regulate commerce. The Republican anti-Chinese plank involving for relief from the Chinese, the power of Congress, the only source from which relief can be had. State enactments on this matter are futile because unconstitutional. The speaker was enabled to give the audience personal assurances of

of the Chinese differences. In San Francisco a conversation with John Russell Young and General Grant, in which he was told by them that the Chinese government was opposed to the emigration of its people to these shores. They had just returned from China. The Viceroy at Shanghai, a man who is to China what Bismarck is to Germany, had said to them: "One wave of my hand, and this emigration is stopped, and I would do it but for the Burlingame treaty." The speaker believed that within twelve months a stop would be put to Chinese immigration. The HISTORY OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY was next ran over. It was a great party in the days of Jackson, but its record for the last twenty years its prominent members are glad to pass over in silence. All through the war the Democratic party was opposed to putting down the rebellion. They denied the power of the National government to "coerce" a sovereign state. In Indiana and Ohio they voted against appropriations. In Congress they voted against the arming of the first 85,000 of the Union army. They voted against the issuance of greenbacks when the emergency of the nation required the enactment of that measure. They opposed the creation of a bonded debt. Then followed the reign of terror in the south. In 1876 six thousand Republicans were murdered by the Ku Klux in Louisiana. The Democratic party is dangerous. It should not come into power again. In justice to the dead, whose graves make long rows on many a Southern battle field, we should not see it done.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY'S RECORD

was rapidly ran over and its grand achievements were pointed out. It had always struggled for the elevation of the standard of human rights. One of the most eloquent passages in the Governor's speech was that on the Nation's sacred memories. He passed from these to remark upon the cheering outlook for the future. He believed the Nation is progressing, that we as people are better than we were ten years ago. The speaker's belief was that Garfield will be elected. First—Because he expresses the principles of the Republican party. Second—Because he is a statesman. The Democrats had been crying out for four years against a soldier and now they had nominated one for President. In closing his speech Gov. Woods said that he had half an idea of coming to live in Reno. He had business which he expected would keep him much in the State. This announcement was received with hearty applause by the audience. During the delivery of his speech the orator's voice was frequently drowned in tumultuous appl use.

When Gov. Woods had ceased, Judge Marshall proposed three cheers for Garfield and Arthur. They were given with a will, and the meeting dispersed.

"How to Get Rid of Them Worms."

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.

"A very destructive army worm has appeared in considerable numbers in the fields between the Marsh house and the Arlington nurseries, says the Reno GAZETTE. They have already done considerable damage to growing crops."

EDITOR GAZETTE:—Divide them worms into two armies. Place one over against the nursery, and call it the Republican legion; place the other half over against the Marsh house, and call it the Democratic cohorts. Now place at the head of these two columns the two Great Army Worms just nominated for Presidents by the two great parties at the great Porkopolis of the Union. Let them worms charge upon each other in battle array, and my word for it, there will be the greatest diet of worm you ever read of in the wormy history of the world. Perhaps the victory of either of these champion army worms will do much towards worming themselves into, not the nursery, nor yet the Marsh house, but into the White House. What have these worms to do with the suspension of the Reno Savings Bank?

Trout fishing in Cold Stream.

Angeline and St. Mary's lakes, situated on the crest of the Sierras, still remain frozen over.

The red locust mite has made its appearance in different places in Sierra valley.

An eastern brook trout was caught in Donner lake yesterday. It was about twelve inches in length.

Donner creek still continues to overrun its banks. The snow from the mountain sides is disappearing very rapidly, which keeps the lake up to high water mark.

Chas. Grippen has completed the census of this township. He finds eleven hundred and eighty-three persons in the town of Truckee, and fifteen hundred and three in the township.

Last Thursday several new engines passed through Truckee. One of them bearing the significant name of "601" was side-tracked and stood all day in front of the Truckee hotel. It attracted as much attention on Front street as a mammoth tar-bucket charm would in Reno. From one of them four rusty looking rounders were seen to come out of the boiler.

A Hen Adopts a Litter of Kittens.

The Modoc Independent is responsible for this: Billy Bowman had at his place a hen that recently hatched a brood of chickens, which were taken away from her and given to another hen. In the same room and about the same time a cat gave birth to a litter of kittens, and the old hen that had been robbed took possession of the cat's bed and has since taken care of the kittens, covering them up at night, and showing them every attention that she would her own young. What worries the hen most is that with all her coaxing she cannot induce the kittens to follow her.

Impure Breath.

Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most mortifying and unpleasant to its possessor, and it is the most inexcusable and offensive in society; and yet the cause of it may easily be removed by cleansing your teeth daily with that justly popular dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT. It purifies and sweetens the breath, cools and refreshes the mouth, and gives a pearl-like appearance to the teeth. Gentlemen who indulge in smoking should cleanse their teeth with SOZODONT, as it removes all unpleasant odors of the weed. Ask your druggist for it. July 1m-DAW

Stop That Cough.

With a sample bottle of Kaiser's German Elixir. This is the most wonderful cough remedy ever introduced, being mild, yet positive in its action and soothing under all circumstances. Old and young may use it with perfect security. It is rich in the medicinal properties of tar, wild cherry and horsebalm. Ask your druggists, Messrs. Osburn & Shoe maker, about its merits. They sell large quantities of it and say it supercedes all others. The genuine bears the Prussian coat of arms and the facsimile signature of Dr. Kaiser on the wrapper and has his name blown in every 75 cent bottle. Samples 25 cent. Large size 75 cents. feb3-daw
